Dear Professors Baumgartner and Jones,

On behalf of Naomi Schneider, thank you for your inquiry regarding our possible interest in your manuscript and for giving us the opportunity to become acquainted with it. I regret, however, that our list is not quite suited to your project.

I wish you the best of luck with this project and hope another publisher can give you a more satisfactory reply.

Best wishes,

Dear Dr. Baumgartner and Dr. Jones:

Thank you for writing to inquire of our interest in your manuscript entitled "The Politics of Disequilibrium: Agendas and Advantage in American Politics." However, I do not feel able to invite submission of the work here. We appreciate your thinking of us and wish you success in your search for a suitable publisher.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Professors Baumgartner and Jones:

Aida Donald asked me to reply to your letter concerning your manuscript, "The Politics of Disequilibrium: Agendas and Advantage in American Politics," since I am responsible for many of our publications in public policy. Although the material points to an interesting and timely book we have come to the reluctant conclusion that we cannot invite you to submit the work for our consideration. We are very heavily committed at the present time and must pass up many worthwhile projects such as yours. Please do allow us, however, to wish you success in placing the work elsewhere.

Sincerely,

Michael A. Aronson
